EASTHAM-HOWELL WEDDING.

Brilliant Celebration of the Marriage Rite at the First Baptist Church-Reception.

At 8:30 o'clock yesterday evening at the first Baptist church in this city Mr. Duncan Douglas Eastham, of Italy, Texas, and Miss Jennie Howell of this city were united in marriage by Dr. George B. Butler, the pastor, in the presding many persons from other cities of the state. The decorations of the handsome church, with palms, ferns and other plants banked about the alter rail surrounding a fountain and forming a lovely grotto.

The wedding party included the following: Miss Norma Calhoun of Houston, maid of honor; Mrs. J. Webb Howell, matron of honor; Missses Fannie Howell of Dallas, Louise Brown and Grace Norrell of Houston, Winnie Thomas, Nelof Huntsville, best man; J. A. Simmons and W. H. Craig of Italy, T. W. Oliphint of Houston, W. F. Smither of Huntsville, O. E. Saunders, B. C. Pittuck of Dallas, and Robt. W. Howell, groomsmen; Jas. W. James, R. S. Webb Jr., Stuart iams Jr.,, all four consins of ing strewn with white chrysanthe-dered by a chorus of fourteen un- parents where the handsome decorations of this chrysanthemum before proceeding to their home at wedding made every room a bower of beauty. Dainty fern sprays intermingled with the white petaled flowers, and white candles cast a soft glow over the lovely and animated scene. The table in the dining room was laid with an elaborate Mexican drawnwork cover, with a Marie Antonette basket of magnificent white chrysanthemums in the center, and spun glass bonbon dishes at intervals around the edges, connected with tulle bands ending in bow effects at the corners. Without the entrance incandescent globes formed the initials "E-H." Misses Lucile Batte and Pauline Webb served punch in the library and W. S. Howell Jr. presided over the bride's book of autographs. William Besserer's orchestra, from Austin, was stationed in the hall and added the charms of sweetest chrysanthemum form were the refreshments.

except the flower girls, who were provided with baskets of chrysanthemum petals.

The bride and groom each belong to prominent and well known families. The groom is a son of Mrs. Delha Eastham of Huntville, and was reared in that city. He is now a successful young planter residing near Italy, where he has large farming interests. He is a young man of fine attainments and excellent character.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Howell and reared in Bryan. Educated, accomplished, gracious and of unusually sweet and sunny disposition, she will speedily endear herself to the people with whom she will be associated in her new home as she has to the people of this city by whom she is universally beloved.

The wedding gifts were numerous and handsome and came from friends of the popular young couple in all parts of the state. Included in the gifts was a check! for $7000 from the bride's father; and another for $1000 from the A reception from 9 to 11 was groom's mother who also gave
